

THE SUGAR BARONS

FAMILY, CORRUPTION,
EMPIRE, AND WAR IN THE
WEST INDIES

MATTHEW PARKER

THE SUGAR BARONS

Family, Corruption, Empire, and War in the West Indies

MATTHEW PARKER

Walker & Company
New York

CONTENTS

Cover

Title Page

Dedication

Introduction 'Hot as Hell, and as Wicked as the Devil'

Part One: The Pioneers

1. White Gold, 1642

2. The First Settlements, 1605–41

3. The Sugar Revolution: 'So Noble an Undertaking'

4. The Sugar Revolution: 'Most inhuman and barbarous persons'

5. The Plantation: Masters and Slaves

6. The English Civil War in Barbados

7. The Plantation: Life and Death

8. Cromwell's 'Western Design': Disaster in Hispaniola

9. The Invasion of Jamaica

Part Two: The Grandees

10. The Restoration

11. Expansion, War and the Rise of the Beckfords

12. 'All slaves are enemies'

13. The Cousins Henry Drax and Christopher Codrington

14. God's Vengeance

15. The Planter at War: Codrington in the Leeward Islands

16. The French Invasion of Jamaica

17. Codrington the Younger in the West Indies

18. The Murder of Daniel Parke

19. The Beckfords: The Next Generation

20. Piracy and Rum

21. The Maroon War in Jamaica and the War of Jenkins's Ear

22. Barbados, the 'Civilised Isle'

23. Thomas Thistlewood in Jamaica: 'Tonight very lonely and melancholy again'

24. Jamaica: Rich and Poor

25. The Sugar Lobby

Part Three: The Inheritors

26. Luxury and Debt

27. The War Against America

28. The West Indian 'Nabobs': Absenteeism, Decadence and Decline

29. Peace and Freedom

Acknowledgements

Maps

Chronology

Simplified Family Trees

Picture Sources

Epilogue The Sins of the Fathers

Source Notes

Select Bibliography

Footnotes

By the Same Author

Imprint