

Bidston Windmill

Alan Cullen

I thought you may like a few photos of Bidston Windmill, a little out of the area but it looked rather good in the fading light in November. Notice the moon appearing in the bottom right section of sails. These photos were taken at 4:45pm on 5 November 2022. Bidston is open but not when we were able to visit and can be found on the Wirral peninsula. Not the easiest of mills to find as car park is a little way away; then a walk over heathland and woods, crossing a bridge over a road and hidden by trees – which were not there when it was built, like so many mills.

